FengHe Asia Fund

Dear Friends and Investors,

FengHe Asia returned -1.41% net for December, which brings the Fund's 2021 full year performance to +27.20%.

From an absolute return perspective, we have certainly done well in 2021, given the difficult market conditions. The MSCI AEJ declined by -4.7% during the year. What I am really proud of is the underlying quality of our performance where we produced minimum drawdowns throughout the year and diversified positive returns across both our long and short books at +29.4% gross and +6.3% gross respectively, with corresponding strong alpha generation at +28.8% and +4.8%. The improving hit rates of our longs and shorts in 2021 underscores the increasing consistency of our team and system in delivering quality profitable ideas across the spectrum of multiple companies, sectors and markets in our research universe.

Recently, a longstanding investor for many years wrote to us and said: "you have delivered not only quality performance and portfolio management, but also an excellent service and transparency." When I founded this fund strategy over 9 years ago, I understood that trust can only be earned through quality performance and transparency, and resolved to achieve these two as long-term objectives. Today, I am very touched to receive this affirmation from a satisfied and trusting client. In order to maintain this precious trust, we must have a clear understanding of the key principles of quality performance and transparency.

My understanding of quality performance is sustainable and scalable performance. Our track record of consistent outperformance over the past 9 years vis-à-vis our AUM growth to $2.4 billion currently is a testament to our sustainability and scalability. If an excellent performance of a fund manager was based on the concentrated returns of a few stocks, this manager's performance would not be sustainable and scalable. If the favorable performance was derived from a systematically robust investment framework and related processes, this can be sustainable and scalable. In Asia, many fund managers are obsessed with finding a few great companies in search of ten-bagger returns. However, I had a different focus right from the launch of the fund as I was determined to develop an investment framework and related processes that can consistently produce high hit-rates. As the Chinese proverb goes, "I do not pursue the fish but instead the way of fishing". The same holds true for our team and talent management. I do not pursue just a few talented performers but instead, I seek to develop the right culture and system to cultivate talent and build our team. Using professional football as an example, I aim to build an excellent youth academy and tactical system, instead of chasing star players. As part of my dedication, I have personally reviewed and improved our training materials for our analysts repeatedly over the years so that our young analysts can learn and absorb the essence of my deep investment experience over 30 years. The crux of my work has been to simplify the existing diverse and complex investing theories and continually develop our FengHe proprietary "3D5M3T" framework. This simple set of 11 letters have become the guiding light for our analysts and helped them to develop and progress significantly. Just last week, we updated our internal investment recommendation memo template for the 8th time in the past 9 years and we will continue to enhance it to help our analysts clearly understand a company and find more certainty in our investment selection process. I am proud to say that after more than 9 years of perseverance and discipline, we have not only caught the fish but have also institutionalised our way of fishing.

Transparency is the prerequisite of a trusting and happy relationship. Due to our management philosophy and investment approach, we want to and are also able to provide high transparency. Our management philosophy is embedded in our name FengHe "风和" where the second letter 和 represents harmony. We want to provide high transparency because we want to build harmonious and happy relationships with our investors. Ever since we have had third party investors in our Fund, I have constantly reminded our team to be friendly and open to our valued clients. Furthermore, we continue to have no gate or lock up terms in the Fund. I often say that the best lock up for investors is our performance, not legal terms. On the other hand, we are able to provide high transparency due to the nature of our aforementioned investment approach where we are not dependent on just a few ideas (which then tends to be shrouded in secrecy), but instead our institutionalised way of fishing will allow us to continuously produce ideas without need for secrecy, and hence be transparent with no fear.

Looking forward to 2022, the future is filled with uncertainties and the market environment may change, but we will not change. We will be resolute in our discipline and focus to continuously work hard to achieve quality performance and transparency for you.

Yours sincerely,

Matt Hu
